No Dogged Importuning
Encourage Imagination
Gold, Yellow and Cold
Perspire, Breathe, Think
—By Arthur Brisbane—

A Supreme Court decision on picketing. Chief Justice Taft tells workmen "importuning and dogging are becoming an unjustifiable annoyance." It is a decision that will sustain injunction against all picketing. It brings labor one step nearer to the universal "open shop" and the end of effective labor unionism.

It requires "importuning and dogging" to persuade a "nab" to give up a well-paid job, secured when some union workman walks out. No importuning, no dogged persuading, and picketing becomes an ineffective joke.

If you don't like union labor, that Supreme Court decision should please you. It hamstring union labor.

Question: If you enjoy persuasion, even importuning and dogging, what substitute will you get? They would not render that decision in England. And the Constitution does not say what KKK of free speech. It says FRED SPEECH.

This is "Education Week." Most important in education is imagination. Don't discourage imagination in children. Imagination made Newton see the law of gravitation in a falling apple. Imagination makes us "listen with credulity to the whispers of fancy and pursue with eagerness the phantoms of hope; expect that we will perform the promises of youth, and that the delicacies of the present day will be supplied by the tomorrow."

Listening with credulity to the whispers of fancy has gradually raised us from cave men to employers of poison gas and submarines. The first who thought he could kill a tiger by fastening a sharp flint to the end of a stick, and the first to plan a flying machine, were alike "listening to the whispers of fancy."

Control, but use, your own imagination. Give full swing to that of your children.

Mr. Henry Ford, in whose strike the self sends several personalities, including a witch doctor, has another pass to end war. The trouble in the gold standard, I agree with that, and see what you would.

Use Mount Everest expedition, climbing to the highest point in the Himalayas mountains, reports the discovery of wild "snow men." One of them, living at a height of 10,000 feet, was seen, his hairy body practically black in the intense cold; his weapon a bow and arrow. That sort of man never has any gold standard, doesn't know about it, but he fights.

If from the Himalayan plateau Mr. Ford will travel down to the Pacific Island of Nauru, just south of the equator, he will find a native who will tell him that he has found a small white man from the South Sea Islands, who has been in the island for some time, and has been seen by the natives.

The tragedy was caused by bargaining in goods not gold. The Hawaiian agreed to sell the canons for so many coconuts. When he saw the agreed number, he demanded twice as many. That cost him his life.

Beware how you strain your heart. Charles H. Killebrew, once champion ballfield runner of the world, died suddenly of a heart disease yesterday, aged 47 years. His championship cost his life. The strain that his courage and determination put on his heart in the desperate struggle of a short ballgame race weakened his heart so that it could not carry him through a normal life.

Persevere to an end to persevere and breathe deeply, expelling the residual air—that's courage; the rest is hard work. It is a stubborn machine, not a good friend.

They tell you the United States will establish a "Hindenburg line" in China, saying to say, "Thus far shall thou go and no farther." What happened to Hindenburg should be fresh in Uncle Sam's memory, even yet. The more his country boys to the line at home and the less the distance with lines in China the better.

The little boy with a chip on his shoulder must be told when someone knocks it off. Uncle Sam, who goes meandering over the Pacific making imaginary lines, must fight when someone crosses his line. The "nobody" can choose a time to fight that may not suit Uncle Sam.

Uncle Sam should study the Japanese. They do not worry the United States and Mexico, or Armenia and the Turks. They gently demand "something" extra in China for agreeing to Mr. Hughes' naval program, saying:

"I will limit my battleships to prevent my going broke. But I return you must give me something that belongs to China." Wonderful men, these Japanese. They will give Uncle Sam a single cent of interest if once they get him in their barber shop.

Harding Sees Hope in Parley

OPTIMISM SPIRIT OF MESSAGE

Here's the Oath of Allegiance for Ireland

London, Dec. 6.—The text of the oath of allegiance to which the Irish shall subscribe under the Irish Free State follows:

"I do solemnly swear true faith and allegiance to the constitution of the Irish Free State as by law established, and that I will be faithful to His Majesty, King George V., his heirs and successors by law, in virtue of the common citizenship of Ireland with Great Britain, and her adherence to and membership in the group of nations forming the British Commonwealth of Nations."

Would Have Foreign War Debts Refunded Speedily; Asks Aid for Russia

Washington, Dec. 6.—President Harding informed Congress today in his first annual message that "a most gratifying world accomplishment" by the arms conference "is not improbable."

The message was delivered by the President in person to the Chamber of the House and in the presence of the delegates to the conference and most of the diplomatic regularly stationed in Washington.

At the outset, the President discussed world conditions, saying "a world restoration program" would have to be worked out "by the nations more directly concerned."

The United States will help, he added, "unselfishly, because there is compensation in the consciousness of assisting selflessly, because the commerce and international exchanges in trade, which marked our high tide of fortune advancement, have been the only when the nations of all continents are restored to stable order and normal relationship."

Turning to domestic problems, the President urged recommended early enactment of the permanent tariff and foreign debt refunding bills.

He also announced that later on he would make some recommendations about renewed consideration of the tax program, involving further reductions and the abolition of "hinderances to the production of an amendment to the Constitution to the effect of non-transferable bonds."

With regard to the merchant marine, he said:

PELLETIER ADAMSON WARNED WOMAN FOUND

Decided Not to Address Rally After He Was Told There Might Be Trouble

How James M. Curley, fearing the wrath of the Pelletier forces, decided not to attempt to address them last night after District Attorney Pelletier personally informed him "there may be trouble," became known today.

More than 400 of Pelletier's supporters awaited the district attorney's presence in the rally hall. Curley arrived in the building shortly before the meeting was scheduled to begin and waited upon Pelletier, in a room above the hall.

Curley told Pelletier he wanted to address the Pelletier followers.

"You can if you want to," said Pelletier, "but I advise you to go slow. There may be trouble. Why don't you talk with some of my men?"

Dittmore Is Refused a Rehearing

Chief Justice Arthur P. Rugg of the Massachusetts Supreme Court today declined to give a hearing in the case of John V. Dittmore, one of the directors of the Christian Science Church who was removed by his associates.

Dittmore, through his counsel, William G. Thompson, brought a bill in equity to have the directors ordered to restore him to his position.

Attorney Thompson maintained that the recent decision of the full court in the Christian Science case did not definitely define the position of Dittmore. He asked that the case be heard again by the full court. Today's decision leaves the matter open for a hearing on facts by a master.

U. S. SUPREME COURT GETS PONZI CASE

Washington, Dec. 6.—A phase of the case of Charles Ponzi, whose financing methods were the talk of the country a year ago and who now is serving a term of five years' imprisonment, today reached the Supreme Court. The Circuit Court of Appeals at Boston seeks to be instructed whether a prisoner, with the consent of the Attorney-General, while serving a sentence . . . can be lawfully taken on a writ of habeas corpus . . . into a state court . . . and there put on trial . . .

Ponzi has been opposing every effort made to take him into the state courts.

FREE STATE SECURED BY SINN FEIN, BUT WITHIN EMPIRE

London, Dec. 6.—The British cabinet at its meeting today unanimously approved the draft agreement with the Sinn Fein, and congratulated Prime Minister Lloyd George and the members of the delegation in the Irish conference on the success of the negotiations.

London, Dec. 6.—(By the Associated Press)—England and Ireland awoke this morning from a troubled sleep of despondency over the Irish situation to learn the joyous news of a sensational and wholly unexpected agreement between the English and Irish conferees in today's small hours. Under this agreement Ireland is to be known officially as the Irish Free State.

Although the terms of the agreement had not officially been made known up to this afternoon, some of the principal points are unofficially understood to be:

Recognition of Ireland as an independent State with a formula on the question of allegiance satisfactory to both sides.

Inclusion of Ulster within the scope of the new Irish government, with the option of withdrawing within one month, reverting, in that case, to her present status within territory fixed by a boundary commission.

Freedom for Ireland regarding customs tariffs.

Satisfactory arrangements regarding control of Irish ports by the navy.

Withdrawal of all military forces from Ireland under safeguards, insuring peaceful conditions.

The negotiations were considered yesterday by her definitely collapsed, and the compromise achieved in Premier Lloyd George's sombre little home in Downing street after a nightlong struggle seems likely to be chronicled as the most momentous event in the history of Anglo-Irish relations.

Said to Have Congratulated Stillman as Father of Child

By Associated Press. Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Dec. 5.—The paternity of Jay William Stillman, a boy born to Jay Ward Lewis, both three years old, was the main issue in testimony today at hearings in the divorce suit of James A. Stillman against Mrs. Anne U. Stillman.

Defending Jay Stillman's paternity, there was testimony that Mr. and Mrs. Stillman lived together at their estate in the Poughkeepsie Hills during the marriage and before the birth of the child.

Father O'Flanagan Doubts Reported Pledge of Sinn Féin Delegates

"At least some of this morning's dispatches regarding the Anglo-Irish movement are unreliable," said Rev. Michael O'Flanagan, vice-president of the Sinn Féin organization, when in evening Worcester today in a Boston American representative.

"That one regarding the definite pledge of allegiance to the British empire is manifestly not correct," he continued.

"The Irish Republicans pledge allegiance to the British empire," he said. "I understand that is some hint that the oath of allegiance to the King will not be required of the Irish in return for their taking the oath of allegiance to the British empire."

"Only last night some papers carried off a new Sinn Féin pledge to the British empire," he said. "I understand that is some hint that the oath of allegiance to the King will not be required of the Irish in return for their taking the oath of allegiance to the British empire."

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY Coming Storer-Storery Nuptials Recall History

By BETTY ALDEN.

It was a day of passing interest to note that when Katherine, Lady Storer, daughter of the Richard C. Storer of the Penway, marries to the sister of the bride of Theodore Lyman Storer, that she will be changing her name to her husband's.

It is of more than passing interest, however, that the Storer family has chosen to have their wedding in the house of their forefathers, the Storer family, a descendant of one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Yours Storer's mother, before her marriage to John H. Storer, was Lydia Paine, the daughter of Robert Treat Paine, the latter a great-grandson of the gentleman who affixed the signature to the important piece of parchment which proclaimed the independence of the "land of the free and the home of the brave" and at the same time was responsible for the origin of that festive holiday which is as to him the pocketbook of those who die in the trenches and other senseless little instruments of death appropriate for the youngsters. Shades of our Ancestors! One cannot but wonder whether or not these noble patriots of the days of 1776 would have graced the aforesaid proclamation with their respective contributions, had they but dreamt of the festive holiday which was to commemorate the deed. But we stray from the subject.

Despite the distinction and "way-wardness" of their names, two prominent members of the Paine family have had trouble because of it—and severely have a tale.

It seems that somewhere over a hundred years ago, Thomas Paine, the son of Robert Treat Paine, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and his original lover, that name, petitioned the Governor of the State to be allowed to change his name to Robert Treat Paine. It was not more whim or caprice, as some have prompted Thomas Paine to plead for permission to change his name. There was a deeper thing: Back in the revolutionary days of this Thomas Paine there lived another man who bore the same name, and people were constantly mistaking the two gentlemen. All in all, it was a "doublet" in the name, and people were constantly mistaking the two gentlemen. All in all, it was a "doublet" in the name, and people were constantly mistaking the two gentlemen.

MISS OLIVE FOSTER

There are many members of the smart set who have seriously taken up painting, writing or music. One of these is Miss Olive Foster, formerly of Boston, who has a studio on East Sixty-fourth street in New York, where she devotes herself to her singing as well as the piano. She was recently snapped in the club doorway one of her frequent visits with her mother, Mrs. Francis S. Foster, at the latter's home on Beacon street.

Is Granted Custody of Two Children

Newport, R. I., Dec. 6.—After deliberating ten minutes, Judge Chester W. Barrows today granted a divorce to Mrs. Althea Burdham Gray of Boston from Austin Gray, on the ground of non-support.

Mrs. Gray was given the custody of two minor children, Marston, sixteen years old, and Austin, thirteen years old. At the request of Gray's counsel, however, the court granted permission to reopen the question of custody at a later time if the defendant failed to pay the child support for the past three or four years that she had maintained herself and her own income, together with an allowance from her mother-in-law, Mrs. John Clinton Gray of Newport and New York. The couple were married August 24, 1914, in Grace Church, Providence.

Billions in Waste Heaps, Declares Engineer

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 6.—Potential raw materials worth billions of dollars could be salvaged from waste heaps every year in the United States if the activities of the people were effectively directed, it was declared before the annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers by J. A. Smith of Schenectady, N. Y.

Mr. Smith, who is general superintendent of the General Electric Company, urged that Congress establish great national salvaging service as one phase of the struggle to restore governmental, industrial and commercial activities to normal.

ASKED FOR VOTE, GOT KNOCKED OUT, IS CHARGE

Lawrence, Dec. 6.—Tony Strazza, a Jackson street stockbroker, was in the District Court today charged with having assaulted Moses Marshall, registrar of deeds, and a brother of Patrolman Henry W. Marshall, who is a candidate for alderman and director of public safety.

The registrar failed to appear and the case was continued. According to Marshall, who was picked up on the pavement in front of the Strazza home last night, the place to ask Strazza to vote for Henry Marshall, Strazza, he said, had questioned his identity and Marshall then offered to go to the City Hall to prove that he was what he claimed to be.

3-YEAR HALT IN REPARATIONS PROPOSED

France and Britain Believe Germany Must Be Given Breathing Spell

Paris, Dec. 6.—By the Associated Press.—Establishment in Berlin of an Allied Control Commission to supervise budget reform, and armed with powers to bring about other financial changes, strong a three-year cessation in Germany's cash reparations payments, is provided in a plan under consideration by reparations officials of France and Great Britain.

The conversation now proceeding are understood to have satisfied the opinion that Germany must be given a breathing spell, in which partially to recover her financial and economic strength.

Germany, it is understood, cannot under present conditions meet her scheduled payments beyond those due in January and February, but it is pointed out that at the end of a three year holiday she will have no excuse to offer for refusing to meet her obligations.

The plan meeting with most favor are such circles, and which may be presented formally to the Reparations Commission at its next meeting, calls for an increase in payments in material.

In addition it provides for balancing of the German budget, retention of German capital within the country, and flotation of a loan, part of the proceeds of which would go to the Reparations Commission.

DEFENCE IN FLAG DISPUTE IS ATTACKED

Legion Men Stirred by New Statement of Loyal Coalition Leaders

Leo Spillane, American Legion department adjutant, and James E. Conway, chairman of the investigating committee, have sent a letter to officials of the Loyal Coalition answering the statement made over the radio of these officials in an advertisement in a Sunday newspaper, that the American Legion "has something to learn" about the American flag and the things it stands for.

The advertisement was inserted over the names of Democrat Lloyd, Arthur W. Joslin and Telfair Minton after Legion and police officials had protested vigorously against a type of early American flag, bearing a Union Jack in the place of the customary field of stars, which had been displayed from the Loyal Coalition headquarters building.

In the advertisement, the Legion men were brought to task for objecting to the display of a flag that once flew over Washington's tent, while it was charged, they frequently altered their own flag to be carried in parades with the first five sections.

LEGION'S REPLY

The letter follows: "Democrat Lloyd, Arthur W. Joslin, Telfair Minton and the members of the Loyal Coalition."

"We have read yesterday's advertisement of the Loyal Coalition. Your statement is a subterfuge and published only in an effort to excite and stir the people into a blind rage against the American Legion, which is the only organization existing in America and presenting loyalty to American institutions in the matter of flag, that is the present recognized and officially adopted flag of our country be given absolute precedence over any other flag. This the Loyal Coalition failed to do, whatever may be the explanation now given."

NEED NO INSTRUCTION

The suggestion is ventured to return to the circulating lawsuit offered to the American Legion by the Loyal Coalition officials, namely, that its leadership does not know "what the American flag stands for." That is the general Edwards, A. Platt Anderson, Charles H. Cole, John T. Duane, William J. Keville, Edward L. Leary, John L. McArthur, John F. McArthur, William H. Root, Thomas F. Foley, E. Leroy Swisher and Louis A. Frothingham, do know what the American flag stands for.

"They have served under the flag, they love that flag and were willing to die for it. They need no instructions from the Loyal Coalition as to their duty. The people of Massachusetts know what their service has demonstrated, what their patriotism is."

SUGGESTS THAT HARVARD CHANGE GRID DATES

The Harvard Alumni Bulletin suggests that the Athletic Association lock out the matter of changing the football dates with Yale and Princeton. It says that the college is not a business and that it should not be run like one. It says that the college should be run for the benefit of the students and that it should not be run for the benefit of the alumni.

SIX PLAYERS IN ATTACK FOR MEDBURGH

CENTRE BATTLE ON THE COAST CALLED OFF

San Francisco, Dec. 6.—University of Southern California athletic officials early today reversed a decision reached last night and announced that the football team of that institution would not play Centre College at San Diego, Calif., December 26. The team officials previously had accepted an invitation to play Centre under the auspices of San Diego civic organizations, but that offer was withdrawn after the final decision was announced.

Women in Knickers Feature at Coast Tennis Tourney

San Francisco, Dec. 6.—Many members of the Women's Park Tennis Club plan to appear in knickerbockers today when play begins in the doubles handicap tournament on the courts in Golden Gate Park, where many championships have been made. The costume included knickerbockers, which feature below the knee, golf stockings and a sleeveless coat, which has a flaring skirt. The coat falls to about six inches above the knee.

Yale Grid Squad Has Extra Game for Next Year

New Haven, Ct., Dec. 6.—Yale's 1932 football schedule contains ten games, the first time for many years that the university has had more than nine. The games with Vermont and Maryland have not been definitely decided upon, but it is expected these colleges will remain on the schedule, tentatively arranged as follows:

September 12, Haver; 20, Vermont; 27, Tufts; 28, Iowa; Oct. 4, Williams; 11, Army; November 6, Brown; 11, Maryland; 18, Princeton; and November 23, Harvard.

THREE VETERAN PLAYERS FOR B. C. FIVE

To the first Boston College call for basketball candidates at University Heights yesterday, thirty-five men responded to Manager Tooten's call. Three of the candidates are veterans of last year's team. They are Jim Collins, Jim Collins, and Jim Collins.

Defenses in North Pacific

CHICAGO, Dec. 2, 1921.

Editor Boston American:

PLEASE write some editorials on three questions now before the Arms Conference. First, submarines: England, wishing their number and size diminished, seeks to prevent any nation from having any weapon that can successfully repel her naval fleet.

Second: Japan, before accepting the American proposal reducing all navies, demands that we shall agree not to fortify our island possessions in the Pacific. Stationary fortifications can only be used defensively, never aggressively. Therefore, Japan's proposal merely means that the United States' possessions must not be prepared for defense when attacked. The United States can have no objection to Japan fortifying Formosa and her other legitimate possessions because the United States has no desire or intention to attack Japan. Japan could not possibly object to the United States erecting defense fortifications in its own territory if Japan did not contemplate war with the United States and occupation by force of arms.

Third: France refuses to reduce her standing army of 800,000 men, her Premier says, because France is afraid of the Russian hordes. France needn't have trouble with Russia if she will leave Russia alone. But France is continually disturbing the peace of Europe by supporting all sorts of armed attacks upon Russia. She has done most of this financing with our American money. France has become the aggressive, oppressive, militaristic power of Europe. Her militarists are as much a menace to peace as Germany was at her worst.

I am afraid the Disarmament Conference is rapidly becoming a disillusionment conference for Americans, who now see in actual operation the secretive, greedy, grasping, lying policies of foreign diplomats.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

We Must Sensibly Prepare to Defend Our Country

THESE striking statements by Mr. Hearst will be scouted by the ignorant, denied by the interested and hotly abused by the sentimental.

But they are true, nevertheless. And since they are true, and since they are of vital interest to our own American welfare, it is time that some American should express the patriotism and the courage to proclaim them publicly and impressively.

The ostrich does not escape its pursuer because it jabs its brainless head in the sand and blinds its eyes to the hunter's pursuit. Nor will we escape the menaces bearing down upon us by imitating the tactics of the ostrich.

These dangerous Japanese and French militarists are not phantoms. They are FACTS.

And they are upon us, upon which we must reckon and with which we must finally deal.

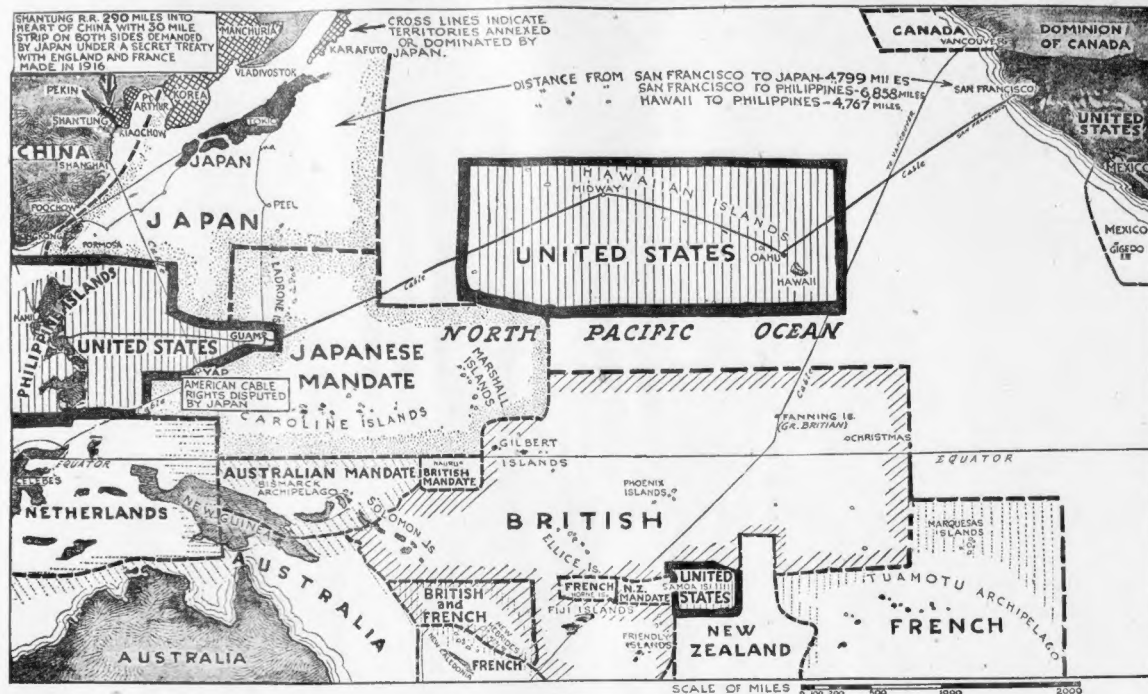

Look at this map here, and see how helpless our position will be if we stop the creation of a mighty defensive fleet and the fortification of powerful defensive outposts and naval bases in the Pacific, and then are forced to go to war with Japan, while French militarism deprives us of any possible assistance from Russia—our best hope, if we had sense and foresight enough to bind Russia to us in ties of recognition, helpfulness, trade and friendship.

In this sense, Japanese militarism and French militarism are both sinister menaces to our future security. The one threatens us with direct attack. The other threatens us with indirect attack upon our only possible allies in a war with Japanese imperialism.

The menace of French militarism is directed primarily, of course, against the peace of Europe, and has for its first time the subjugation of Continental Europe to the hegemony of France

HOW THE JAPANESE AND BRITISH HAVE PRE-EMPTED THE NORTH PACIFIC

Based on a Map Recently Issued by the British Admiralty

had they not been financed with American money and encouraged by mistaken American sentiment.

The myth of French affection for America and of French helpfulness to America are responsible for the encouragement of the design of French diplomacy and French militarism. Both myths are due to deplorable ignorance of our own history which is so nearly universal.

The grossly overestimated aid which the Bourbon despotism tardily and stingily gave our revolutionary father is exaggerated and glorified, while the repeated unfriendliness of one French Government after another during almost the whole of our national existence is forgotten or ignored.

It is forgotten that Washington, the first President, had to dismiss the French Minister and sever official relations with the French Government.

It is forgotten that the Congress has to call Washington from his retirement at Mount Vernon to take command of the army, mobilized to repel French aggressions.

It is forgotten that French-built cruisers scoured the seas in pursuit of our merchant ships, and that a French army was landed in Mexico to defy the Monroe Doctrine, and to encourage and aid the destruction of our Union in that time of stress and agony when the fate of the republic hung in the balance of terrible civil war.

It is forgotten that no longer ago than 1838 the French Government was exacting its diplomatic resources in a secret effort to line up Russia, Germany and England in a hostile declaration against us and in support of Spain. The profits then are positive and in existence yet today.

So, then, we should remember or learn real history and have sense enough to drop all sentimentality and to regard French militarism moving toward the subjugation of Central Europe and Russia with the same apprehension as we should regard Japan moving toward the subjugation of China and the conquest of the Pacific.

The Japanese threat is, of course, the most imminent threat against our peace and security, and concerns us more nearly than any other. But it should be met with the same determination and aid in Europe were left in peace by France, and we had the other white nations to rely upon for supplies and encouragement and aid in the battle with the yellow men.

All common sense dictates such a reply to Japan's imperialistic and militaristic designs and preparations. And, of course, the same common sense dictates that we fortify our Pacific outposts and create naval bases on the other side of that vast sea for the use of our fleets—since without those fortified outposts and naval bases our fleets would be as useless in these distant waters as toy-boat armies and navies.

Every thinking American should ponder upon the statements of Mr. Hearst which head this editorial. Nothing is so fatal to a nation's security as reliance upon sentimentality instead of reliance upon sense.

We have sentimentality at work today in Washington, with our own government proposing a policy of weakening our only defense, which is our splendid navy.

With French militarism rampant and turbulent in Europe, and with Japanese militarism secretly and treacherously advancing upon China and sulkily watching for the propitious hour to strike at our own America, we have these representatives of ours advocating the crippling of our defensive navy and the abandonment of our defensive outposts.

We urge and implore you thinking and patriotic people to rise in protest against this fatal proposal to cripple our sea defenses, to breach our seawalls, to lay the land open to the attacks which our navy, if rightfully and wisely maintained, could beat off and put to rest before the proof of an enemy ship had come within a thousand miles of our American land.

Let us be done with cant and humbug.

Let us look facts in the face.

They tell us that an era of peace and righteousness is at hand; that Japan desires only peace and goodwill on earth; that England is overflowing with love to all the world; that if we sink our ships and discard our defenses on the sea, our combined foolishness and riches will excite only increased brotherly love and not one single thought of envy or robbery.

We beg of you, countrymen and brethren, not to be deceived by these lying and ignorant prophecies of an imminent millennium.

Do not permit our country to be stripped of her defenses.

Do not permit one of our splendid ships to be sunk or alienated.

Speak to your representatives in commanding tones.

Make them hear and obey your mighty protest.

They are your servants, not your masters.

Command them.

And in all your faithful and loyal hearts resolve that our American flag shall fly above an American Navy powerful enough to guard our dear land against any foe, and willing and able to dash to pieces, amid the thunder of its victorious guns and the cheers of its gallant crews, any enemy that comes to storm at the sea-gates of our republic—which God save and protect, now and forevermore.

The Case for Education

A PLAQUE depends upon a community. Thousands sicken and die, ignorance, in alarm, practices in cantations, then flees, leaving the stricken to perish in lonely misery.

Education seeks out the causes of the pestilence, improves the environment and effects a preventive cure.

Nature produces a strange phenomenon—an earthquake, a vivid agent, an eclipse. Ignorance sees in it a supernatural warning, worries itself into a frenzy of fear and casts about for methods of propitiating the offended deities.

By these means throughout the ages ignorance has condemned millions of humans to sacrificial slaughter and other millions to needless suffering.

Education, on the contrary, studies the laws of nature until they are revealed as fixed, impersonal, unchangeable, then adapts life to them with infinite gain.

Wars, pestilences, famines; the whole range of cruelties practiced by man upon man; indeed, every maladjustment by which life is made poorer traces back to ignorance.

It is ignorance which thrusts humanity into noxious slums where little children have not a reasonable chance.

It is ignorance which permits such monopolizing of the common wealth that weaker peoples are enslaved and exploited by stronger, that governments professing devotion to the common good become greedy instruments of oppression, that liberty is threatened and the pursuit of happiness made baffling by needless barriers in its way.

Ignorance lights the torch of superstition, of bigotry, of savagery, of greed and of all the pestilential devils which in the shape of vices annoy, restrict and degrade mankind.

Could we lift the level of human mentality one tiny degree, we should be blessed with an incalculable enrichment of the average life.

This blessing of enhanced education and enriched existence is not beyond our reach. It could be realized by a comparatively small exertion of the American people's will power.

The people who four years ago willed that in little more than a year thirty thousand millions of their dollars should be spent to put two million soldiers on European soil and who, by willing it, gave the world a glimpse of power in the collecting and merging of scattered forces such as in all history's story had never been seen before, need not be dismayed by the cost—whatever it shall be—of putting a well-rounded education at the option of every American.

As a matter of fact, that cost is not excessive and need not prove burdensome, for it brings dividends larger than the payments entailed.

Taking the United States at large, we are spending less than $360 on the public school education of each child, from kindergarten to and through high school. The additional cost of college and professional or technical school for the limited number who get these advantages adds only about $80 per pupil.

It has been estimated that to put the best available instruction in every kind of school from lowest to highest at the free disposal of every American would cost $1,500 for each child, or approximately three times as much more as we are now spending.

Yet it would require less than 5 per cent. of our aggregate normal income; and in a very little while the dividends would be converting the transaction into a source of net profit. A small part of what we so eagerly spent on war would see it through.

There are plenty of figures based on actual experience to prove how much an educated man's earning power exceeds the earning power of the man whose equivalent natural aptitudes have not been cultured by schooling, but we shall not quote them far, at best, they are only part of our story.

Unquestionably an education pays direct dollar dividends on its cost. Which might prove a good reason why the parent or guardian should educate the dependent child or why the orphan should if possible borrow that he might get this benefit.

But the commanding argument for giving to education the special consideration which President Harding has wisely invited for this week is the fact that without it our white civilization may soon die of suffocation.

If we cannot bring to the problems of the near future a better average power of brain than the kind of brain power which is responsible for our present muddles, we shall, as H. G. Wells foretells, have to sink into an eclipse while some new race, with fresher facts and clearer vision, takes up the duties of leadership and sweeps us contemptuously aside.

The matter of making our schools more effective by, therefore, not detaching from the petty standpoint of cost vs. economy, but becoming a high imperative of self-preservation.
